

Notification

The owner of a dangerous dog must notify the Council within 24 hours if:

- the dog is missing
- the ownership of the dog changes
- the owner's address changes
- the place where the dog is kept changes

This keeps the Council informed of the location of dangerous dogs at all times. The Council will inspect the premises to ensure the Regulations are being adhered to.

Councils have the power to charge higher registration fees for dangerous dogs that have been declared due to attack, than the standard maximum pet registration fees.

The Domestic (Feral and Nuisance) Animals Regulations 2005 provide for and ensure a state-wide standard relating to the management of dangerous dogs. The uniform identification of dangerous dogs, and the identification of premises where they live is important for easy identification of these dogs. It is also vital for effective state-wide education programs, directed particularly at children.

The Domestic (Feral and Nuisance) Animals Act 1994 is State legislation which is enforced by Municipal Councils.

Things you should know about dangerous dogs

The Domestic (Feral and Nuisance) Animals Act 1994 empowers Municipalities to declare a dog to be 'dangerous' if the dog has caused serious injury to a person or animal, if the dog is a menacing dog and its owner has received at least 2 infringement notices for failing to comply with restraint requirements, if the dog has been declared dangerous under corresponding legislation in another State/Territory, or for any other reason prescribed. Serious injury to a person is an injury in the nature of broken bones, lacerations requiring multiple sutures or cosmetic surgery or the total or partial loss of sensation or function in a part of the body.

A dangerous dog declaration has effect throughout Victoria, and it cannot be revoked, amended or otherwise altered.

A dog that is kept for the purpose of guarding non residential premises, or a dog that has been trained to attack or bite any person or any thing when attached to or worn by a person, is automatically a dangerous dog under the Domestic (Feral and Nuisance) Animals Act 1994. The information in this brochure does not apply to guard dogs on non-residential premises – for specific information on these dogs refer to the brochure "Things you should know about guard dogs on non-residential premises".

Owners of dangerous dogs have imposed on them a series of obligations to make sure that innocent members of the public are not attacked by such a dog. There are penalties for non-compliance. This document provides an overview of the requirements relating to dangerous dog provisions in the Act and the prescribed requirements in the Domestic (Feral and Nuisance) Animals Regulations 2005.

Mircochip identification

The owner of the dog must ensure that the animal is implanted with an ISO microchip in accordance with the Regulations (unless already microchipped prior to 20 May 2003).

This microchip identification number, along with other information as specified in the Regulations, must be supplied to the council with which the dog is registered within 7 days of the dog being microchipped.

Desexing

As of 10 April 2006, it is a requirement to desex all dangerous dogs that have been declared due to attack. Newly declared dogs (due to attack) must be immediately desexed unless the owner obtains a certificate from a veterinarian stating the dog cannot be desexed for health reasons.

Collar

Whilst a microchip is a permanent form of identification it is not visible. Dangerous dogs must also wear a prescribed collar at all times. The collar is specially designed to be visible from a distance and is reflective at night. This means that at all times, whether on the owners property or not, a dangerous dog can be recognised from a distance, warning a person of the potential danger of the dog.

Collars for dangerous dogs must:

- consist of red stripes alternately spaced with yellow stripes each being of a width of 25mm and set diagonal to the rim of the collar at an angle of 45 degrees; and
- at least one of the two colours reflect light in the dark; and
- be made of durable materials; and
- be able to be securely fastened; and
- have a minimum width of:
  - 25mm for a dog weighing less than 20kgs
  - 40mm for a dog weighing between 20kgs and 40kgs
  - 50mm for a dog weighing more than 40kg

Signs

It is important for a person with a valid reason to enter the premises (e.g. emergency services personnel) to know a dangerous dog is present. The owner of a dangerous dog must display prescribed warning signs at all entrances to the premises where the dog is kept warning people that a dangerous dog is kept on the premises.

This warning sign must:

- be square with sides of at least 40cm
- be made of durable metal
- have at least one colour that is reflective
- comply with the Domestic (Feral and Nuisance) Animals Regulations 2005

Example of warning sign.

Housing

When indoors or in an outdoor enclosure, the dog must be housed in such a way that it cannot escape, and that prevents it from injuring visitors to the premises. The dwelling and enclosure must both be constructed in such a manner that a person cannot have access to them without the assistance of an occupier of the premises who is of or over 17 years of age. The owner must also ensure there is an outdoor enclosure that must:

- be fully enclosed
- have a weatherproof sleeping area
- have a minimum floor area of ten square metres per dangerous dog
- have a minimum height of 1.8 metres
- have a minimum width of 1.8 metres
- contain walls, a floor, a drain, a roof and a gate which comply with the detail below

The walls of the enclosure must be fixed to the floor or constructed to be no more than 50mm from the floor.

The walls, roof and gate of the enclosure must be constructed of:

- brick, timber, iron or similar solid materials; or
- chain mesh manufactured from 3.15mm wire to form a uniform 50mm mesh or weldmesh manufactured from 4mm wire with a maximum mesh spacing of 50mm.

A combination of the above may be acceptable. The mesh size and construction detail is specified so that the enclosure will be escape proof and so that people, particularly small children, cannot fit body parts such as hands into the enclosure with the dog.

The floor of the enclosure must be constructed of sealed concrete and be graded to a drain for the removal of effluent.

The gate on the enclosure must contain a lock and it is a requirement that the enclosure is kept securely locked when the dog is in the pen.

Restraint

A dangerous dog must be muzzled and on a lead whilst it is outside the owner's dwelling and the dog's enclosure.
