Dear Sir

This is outrageous! How can this be thought to be a sensible idea? I simply do not understand how are government (the ones supposed to protect our health & rights) can think that this is something that the average person would want. I personally try to buy as much organic food and personal products as i can as their is more an more evidence showing the contamination to our bodies. It is an example of goverment not wanting to listen to the public and thinking that it will be a solid financial gain for the country. This is not so- when people become sick, it becomes a huge financial health cost. Cigarettes at one stage were thought to be harmless- not so now. Their has not been enough testing to announce that it is completely safe- enough testing for me would be one over at least 20-30 years without releasing it to the general public an under enclosed conditions where it cannot pollute any other surrounding areas. There is no solid evidence that it does not harm human kind as well as the flora and fauna of our country. There is so much destruction in the world as we know it , why would we willingly give this to our children. There have been far too many things introduced into this country already that we are paying for ie, cane toads, rabbits, foxes, pattersons curse all at one stage thought to be beneficial for our country- today we think not.

Yours sincerely

Miss Anthea MacDonald
