

JIM THOMSON

Jim Thomson is a Research Fellow in the Australian Centre for Biodiversity at the School of Biological Sciences, Monash University, Australia. His research interests include freshwater ecology, landscape ecology, ecological modelling, and statistics. His recent work includes studies of the ecological impacts of river restoration and floodplain management, and predictive modelling for biodiversity management and revegetation planning.

